On the other hand we find that the compradore paid only small sums over to his master, who no doubt has been grossly defrauded. There was running account evidently between the compradore and his master. Did they rely on the understanding that be was to secure Chinese customers? With regard to the phyments made by the defendant before this one, it is to be inferred that Mr. Lewbke did not insist on the compradore at once accounting for the amount of the debit notes sent to the defendant. He accepted payments on account and took the excuses made by the compradore as true. A little judicious enquiry would have set this right. The value of a receipt (except moderate and just, and England intends adher- in a deed) is much over-rated. It is nothing more than evidence of payment. On the one band the party giving a receipt may prove that in fact the money was not paid; on the other the party called to pay may prove a previous Derby deprecated either unwise intermeddling payment in any way he can. No notice was given that payment was not to be made except on presentment of a signed bill. The simple precaution of a heading to a bill to this effect would be a great protection against a dishonest collector. I am of opinion that this payment is proved, and that it is a good one, on the ground that the compradore was the plaintiff's authorized agent to receive payment, and that it was made in the usual course of business. The following table exhibiting the results of the failures of the past three months so far as the balance-sheets hitherto published reveal them, is given by The Times. In commenting upon this table our contemporary says:—It is ot a complete list, but the majority of the more important firms are here included. Of those about which there are as yet no particulars the most conspicious, are Fothergill and Hankey Sanderson and Co., and Young, Bothwick, and Co. Regarding the first of these we are tole that the assets depend upon whether a publicompany can be formed for working the valuable mines and works owned by the firm. If capital can be found to do this, the estate may, it is said, pay in full -that is, if the shareholders will take up the firm's liabilities-but a forced sale might yield almost nothing. The liabilities are about £1,250,000. The other two firms are the discount houses brought down by Fothergill and Hankey and Alexander Collie respectively. and their actual position cannot yet be shown because a good many of their bills have not yet come to muturity, and because the bankrupt estate on which they rank have not yet been realised." Sanderson's estate is not expected to turn-out well; the creditors may get 2s. or 2s. 6d. in the pound. Young, Borthwick, and Co. assets are, we bear, even less substantial. appears that the capital of this firm was nearly if not quite all held by the Bank of England us. murgin on advances at the time of its stoppage; and, that money being forseited, there is little left for the ordinary creditor out of the estate itself. Sanderson's estate, on the other hand, shows a better state of affairs than would otherwise have been the case, through their having in hand a considerable deposit from Fothergil., Hankey, and Co., which that firm forfeited when it failed. The liabilities of the twenty-nine "ARMY WORMS" IN LUNG ISLAND firms whose balance-sheets are summarised below amount to £6,305,656, against assets of £1,493,000, exclusive of £594,000 which is tiles that seem to infest certain agricultural marked "doubtful." Her armament consisted of ten 12-ton cuns and three 40 pounder Armstron e and her tonnage was 6,034. Her engines were 800 herse-power nominal, but capable of being worked up to 3,040 horse-power. She was protected by a belt of iron four and a half inches thick and extending five feet below the water-line. The collision occurred between the Ordlin Lightship and the Kish Lightship, about fifteen miles from the anchorage in Dublin Bay. The Iron Duke dashed into the Vanguard with tremendous force, strik ing her transversely between the main and mizven masts on the port side, and just abreast of the engines -in fact the strongest part of the ressel. english and chinese dictionary, WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Prost Office, Hongkong. 10B comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in cutenio. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exer-Union Insurance Society of Canton, new shares cises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-Ohina and Japan Marine Insurance-Tle. 90 graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. 41,000 Viotoria Fire Insurance Company's Shares-, To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Hongkong and Whampon Dock Company's Chalmers Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Modburst's English Hongkong, Uanton and Macao Steamboat Co.'s and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilet this work dontains more than 50,000 English Press Office, or to the following Agents :-Shanghai Steam Navigation Company-Tis. words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charac. Hongkong, 12th July, 1875. Many boxes of letters are received at the Post Office not scaled, that is to say, the box is factored with sealing wax, but there is no impression of a seal.

General Post Office,

The undersigned would call the attention of boxholders to the pecessity of onrefully scaling such boxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a Chit-book or receipt with them. The omission of the latter pressution leaves a doubt as to weather the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office; the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not bave been abstracted for the sake of the Postage It is not generally possible to count the letters sent in sealed boxes (except where there are only three or four) and therefore the Post Office receipt to such an entry as, " 47 for London, 15 for Calcutta, 3 for Penang, 5 for Singapore," must be taken to mean no more than what is stated, viz., that one box was duly received. THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION O let me amila a little. I pray-Just a little, and while I may: Even as a obild smiles ; after to-day I shall have whole years to weep in. O let me talk like a child, nachid, After to-day 'twill all be hid. No band shall lift up the coffin-lid Of the eilence I shall sleep in:

In Portsmouth herbour the good ship rides, Rocked safely upon the placed tides, As love in a happy heart abides, Moving with each emotion, With voices and hand alive all o'er : And to-morrow-perhaps forevermore-I shall look out for a desolate shore. "Upon an empty ocean...

O leve, my here and my saint, My knight of the white shield, without taint This woman-heart turns nick and faint. Although my lips may fail not. I see the rocks under smiling seas. I hear a tempest in every breeze, I feel the irebergs as they freeze In the depths where ships can sail not.

O love, my love, to brave, so young. Strong arm; pure heart, and silent tongue! O lonely yours that stretch out so long! One ory as of lost existence: And my soul sits down before its doom, As a white ghost sits at the door of a tomb No moan, no shriek, no tears, no gloom, Only a still persistence.

Be of good cheer. Sail on, sail on, Unto life or death; for both ate one To the infinite faith in sweet days gone, To the infinite love that folds thee. These girlish arms are weak, I know, But my heart is strong as a well bent bow; and whither thou goest I will go. In my spirit that upholds thee.

Sail on, sail on, through the frozen sens. To endless labour, and little caso; Came back trimmphant, if Heaven so please, Or with unwon goal, inglorious; That He has crowned thee another way. Lovo ! see, beyond our night, His day, And we are yet-victorious. -S. F. Examiner.

KISSING THE BRIDE. At a marriage toast which was being celebrated in Cork, kinsing the bride seems to have been a very important item of the proceedings, one of the favoured few, a member of the West Cork Royal Artillery Militia, by the way, being so demonstrative in his affection that when giving her what he styled the "training kiss," he, possibly with a view of die out over the favoured portions of the making a lasting impression, sunk his incisor | globe. - Sanilary Record. teeth so deeply in that delicate appendage the lady's lower lip, as to sever one of the blood vessels. plate? How much more so to experience!

The more freely the salt water comes in direct contact with the skin the more offcient is the bath, and it is undoubtedly best, says the Sanitary Record, to bathe naked but except in out-of-the-way places this is not practicable even for men; on the whole it is more convenient for them to use the short drawers known as schwimhosen in Germany: The looser the bathing-gowns of women are the better. But, in countries where the two sexes bathe together, as in most places in Belgium or France, closer fitting garments are necessary; and French women, as it is well known, indulge in every variety of picturesque costume, and few various dresses in which they rig themselves out, and the different fashions after which they disport themselves in the water for the entertainment of the admiring bystanders. We have heard similar scenes described by travellers who had seen them in the United States, for the Americans closely imitate the French in their fashions.

DISCIPLINE IN THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR.

President Lincoln paid Sherman's brigade a visit, whon an officer forced his way through the carriage, and said : "Mr. President, I have a cause of grievance. This morning I went to speak to Colonel Sherman, and he threatened to shoot me." Mr. Lincoln looked at him, then at me, and stooping his tall, spare form towards the officer, said to him in he throatened to shoot, I would not trust a gasp, partly nervous, and partly in conseofficer turned about and disappeared, and the the internal organs—lungs and heart espemen laughed at him. BRAIN CULTURE AND STERILLTY. is that that very education on which New fowing utterances; England has so long prided itself, and of which it has boasted so much, should seem to lead its people to extinction. The education of the girls seems to have been especially fraught with evil. Now, when the higher education of woman is being so much discussed, such a statement is most important. If the education of girls militates so distinctly against their qualifications for the duties of motherhood, we are driven to the disagreeable conclusion that we must choose again?" betwixt an accomplished and highly educated but barren bride, and a less intellectual but that horse?" fertile spouse.
